Experts debate legality of Cooper's pipeline deal

Elizabethtown Bladen Journal

That's the gist of the memorandum of understanding hammered out between Gov. Roy Cooper's administration and the four utilities building the Atlantic Coast Pipeline. Under the deal, announced Friday, the pipeline operators would pay $57.8 million for projects the governor wants, and, in exchange, ...

OPINION: Cooper should lead with his mind, not his chin

Asheville Citizen-Times

Roy Cooper is an experienced and capable politician. So far, his approval ratings are fine. But he's hardly made of iron, or even Teflon. Inviting easy attacks on him is foolish. And in recent weeks, foolish is precisely the right description of the strategy the governor's political team and partisan allies have ...

We need bold change to regulatory system behind nuclear debacle, not timid tweaks

The State (blog)

Here's the problem with that: Santee Cooper board members aren't regulators. They are simply people who run a state agency. A state agency that, we have found, can go into debt for billions of dollars and stick its customers — who have no choice but to be its customers — with the bill. The governor ...

Questions remain over state elections boards

Spectrum News

Though most members are in town, they don't need to be while legislative leaders await court actions. Amd one decision handed down last Friday has some Republicans fuming. "Let me be very clear," says Rep. David Lewis, a Harnett County Republican, "as Governor Cooper telegraphed months ago, ...

SCANA: So-Called Oversight Agency Erred In Report
FITSNews

Earlier this month the S.C. Office of Regulatory Staff (SCORS) issued a report suggesting a rosy outcome for the Cayce, S.C.-based firm – which partnered with government-run utility Santee Cooper on a spectacularly failed, colossally costly nuclear power plant expansion (a.k.a. #NukeGate). Shortly ...
